SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

In 2010, Helen “Hedy” Marie Russo donated this collection to the Montgomery County Archives. This collection includes the correspondence, papers, books, journals, scrapbooks, and photographs belonging to the Ross-Russo Family. The Rosses are a prominent local family associated with the large Ross Farm in the Rossvie area. Hedy Russo is the granddaughter of Dr. John W. Ross II (1883 – 1962), local doctor and operator of the Ross Farm from 1940 through 1962. The family has a long medical legacy in Montgomery County. This collection has international significance as several Ross surgeons served in Central America.

John Walton Ross (January 11, 1843 – February 8, 1920) served in the Confederate Army during the Civil War. Following the war, John W. Ross earned his medical degree from Tulane University and joined the U.S. Navy. During his naval career, Ross spent time in Mississippi, the Pacific, Florida, and Cuba. His extensive work with yellow fever secured his title as medical director of the Navy in 1903. While stationed in the Panama Canal Zone, Ross fell ill from autumnal fever by late 1904. He eventually retired and settled in California until his death in 1920.

Edward Barker Ross, the brother of John W. Ross, and Dorothy Ann Crouch Ross had a son named E.B. “Ted” Ross (c. 1889 – 1948). Ted received his medical degree from Vanderbilt University and practiced medicine and surgery in Guatemala. During World War I, Ted Ross served in France, where he was gassed. After the war ended, he served as head of a hospital in Havana, Cuba. Katherine Dahrn visited Cuba on a trip and met Ted Ross. The couple married on January 5, 1925. The lingering effects of the gas injury forced Ted Ross and his wife to move to Denver, Colorado, to convalesce. They returned to Clarksville in 1929 and Ted Ross continued to practice medicine and surgery.

John W. Ross, II (January 10, 1883 – October 22, 1962), the brother of Ted Ross, followed in the steps of his uncle and namesake. Ross attended medical school at the University of Virginia. A letter in the collection documents an employment offer from the Isthmian Canal Commission to John W. Ross, Jr. as an intern at the Santo Thomas Hospital on August 23, 1907. While en route to Panama, he met Helen Calhoun Danforth (1874 – 1971), the Syrian-born daughter of a medical missionary from Massachusetts, on her way to teach English to children. The couple wed on November 26, 1908. During their time in Panama, the Rosses welcomed two sons, John “Jack” W. Ross III (September 21, 1909 – c. 1998) and Danforth Ross (January 18, 1911 – February 8, 1998). In 1913, they moved home to Clarksville, Tennessee, where daughter Dorothy Ann was born on October 18, 1915 at Wheatlands. Dr. John W. Ross continued to practice as a physician and surgeon. The family journeyed to Guatemala in 1923 when Dr. John W. Ross took a position as a surgeon for the United Fruit Company, but the family returned home to Clarksville in 1924. The family resided at 448 North Second Street, Anderson Drive, and eventually moved to a farm property.

Jack Ross attended the University of Virginia Medical School and became the third Dr. John W. Ross in the family. Jack Ross married Mildred “Millie” Corrine Sclater (February 1, 1914 – December 11, 2006), a nurse he met at the University of Virginia, and set up practice in Clarksville. Danforth “Dan” Ross earned his PhD from the University of Minnesota and served on the faculty at Southwestern University at Memphis. Dan married Dorothy Gertrude Sonnenfeld. Born to a Norwegian mother and German father in Minnesota, Sonnenfeld enlisted in the Air WACs (Women’s Army Corps) and served at Eglin Field, Florida.

A 1932 graduate of Clarksville High School, Dorothy Ann Ross (October 18, 1915 – January 16, 2009) studied French at Vanderbilt University. She spent her junior year studying abroad in France and pursued graduate work in Montreal and Iowa. Dorothy Ann Ross, a French schoolteacher, married Remo Trieste Russo (August 8, 1915 – 1975), an artist, on December 28, 1941. The couple had two children, Galen Danforth Russo (November 13, 1943 – November 15, 1962) and Helen “Hedy” Marie Russo (b. October 31, 1944). The Russo family resided at 230 Georgia Avenue in Clarksville. Dorothy Ann Ross worked as a civilian instructor at Camp Campbell Education Center in the early 1950s. Both Galen and Hedy graduated from Clarksville High School, where Dorothy Ann taught French. Galen, a football player, attended Southwestern University at Memphis until his death at age 19 after a long illness.

During the 1960s and 1970s, Remo and Dorothy Ann Russo lived in Huntington, West Virginia, and Arlington, Virginia. Remo died from cancer in 1975 and Dorothy Ann returned to Clarksville, Tennessee. She continued to teach French until her retirement in 1981. In 2009, Dorothy Ann passed way at the age of 93. Her daughter Hedy donated this collection in 2010. Additions to the collection are anticipated in the future.

During the processing of this collection, some items were weeded and others moved to other topical collections. These items included Purple and Gold editions, Austin Peay State University yearbooks, and political advertisements. The book Ancestors Growing Up and Other Things (1992), written by Hardy Drane, is on the shelf in the reference room library. Photographs, slides, and negatives are housed in the Archives Photograph Collection. Any unprocessed items are housed in acid-free, bankers boxes in AR 29/3.

Two boxes of Cooper-Earhart family correspondence, 1843 – 1969, are housed at the end of the collection. The letters and related items were found inside a box with Ross-Russo materials. The Ross-Russo connection to the Cooper-Earhart family is unknown at this time.
